"Through the green, a ball that is embedded may be lifted, cleaned and dropped, without penalty as near as possible to the spot where it lay but not nearer the hole. The ball when dropped must first strike a part of the course through the green. I know you've seen this one because almost all courses in the USA have adopted it!

"Through the green" has nothing to do with the act of hitting a golf ball over the green, which is a common misuse of the term. If you hit a ball over the green, you "flew the green," "airmailed the green," "knocked it over the green," or any number of other synonymous expressions used by golfers. You did not "hit the ball through the green."
